

HOW TO MAKE CONSENT CHA

Step 1) Ask: Do you want a cha da cup?

If they say, "Yes! I'd love a cha da cup!" then boil water in a pot and proceed to step 2.

If they say, "No," then do NOT make them a cha da cup. They do not want your cha.

If they say, "Hmmm... I'm not sure," then you can boil water in a pot, but beware they might not want your cha later on.

Step 2) Ask: Do you like laung, laachi, adrak and khand in your cha?

If they say, "Yes!" then add all the ingredients plus the pati and let steep. Proceed to step 3.

If they say, "I do not like khand in my cha," then do not put any in. Just because you like khand in your cha, does not mean they do.

Step 3) Ask: Do you want dudh in your cha?

If they say, "Yes!" pour in dudh and let the cha boil. Proceed to step 4.

If they are unresponsive and may be unconscious then do not pour dudh in the cha and stop making it. An unconscious person is incapable of answering your question or drinking any cha.

Step 4) Ask: Do you still want a cha da cup?

If they say, "Yes!" transfer the cha into a tea pot and serve them a garma garam cha da cup.

If they say, "Actually, I do not want a cha da cup anymore.." then do not pour them a cha da cup or force it down their throat. Do not get mad or annoyed at them for changing their mind.

Step 5) Ask: Would you like more cha?

If they say, "Yes!" pour them another cha da cup.

If they say, "No, I do not want more cha," then do not pour them more. Just because they wanted your cha once, does not mean they want your cha again.

Consent is as simple as a cha da cup

If you can understand when someone does not want cha, then you can understand the same when it comes to sex.

HOW TO MAKE CONSENT Green Tea

Step 1) Ask: Do you want a cup of green tea?

If they say, "Yes! I'd love some green tea!" then add in the tea leaves into the teapot and proceed to step 2.

If they say, "No," then do NOT make them green tea. They do not want your green tea.

If they say, "Hmmm... I'm not sure," then you can add the tea leaves into the teapot, but beware they might not want your green tea later on.

Step 2) Ask: Do you like your green tea at the perfect temperature?

If they say, "Yes!" then boil the water to 90°C, add the water to the teapot, and let steep. Proceed to step 3.

If they say, "I do not like my green tea too hot," then do not boil it to 90°C. Just because you like your tea hot, does not mean they do.

Step 3) Ask: Do you want sugar or milk in your tea?

If they say, "Yes!" add in some sugar and milk and stir the green tea. Proceed to step 4.

If they are unresponsive and may be unconscious then do not put sugar or milk in their tea and stop making the tea. An unconscious person is incapable of answering your question or drinking any green tea.

Step 4) Ask: Do you still want a cup of green tea?

If they say, "Yes!" give them the cup of green tea.

If they say, "Actually, I do not want a cup of green tea anymore.." then do not pour them a cup or force it down their throat. Do not get mad or annoyed at them for changing their mind.

Step 5) Ask: Would you like more green tea?

If they say, "Yes!" pour them another cup of green tea.

If they say, "No, I do not want more green tea," then do not pour them more. Just because they wanted your tea once, does not mean they want your green tea again.

Consent is as simple as a cup of green tea

If you can understand when someone does not want tea, then you can understand the same when it comes to sex.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

An interpretation of 2015 Emmeline May and Blue Seat Studios' Tea Consent video

